Harissa Roast Vegetable Traybake

A hands-off supper of caramelised roots under a smoky-sweet glaze, finished with lemon, feta and herbs.

Serves 4. About 55 minutes, most of it in the oven.

For the tray

700g carrots, scrubbed and halved lengthways

500g parsnips, peeled and quartered

400g baby potatoes, left whole

2 red onions, cut into thick wedges

1 small cauliflower, broken into florets

3 tablespoons olive oil

2 tablespoons harissa paste

1 tablespoon honey

1 teaspoon cumin seeds

half a teaspoon of flaky salt

To finish

1 lemon, halved

100g feta, crumbled

a small handful of parsley, roughly chopped

2 tablespoons toasted flaked almonds

1. Heat the oven to 200C (fan 180C). Line your largest roasting tray with baking paper.
2. Tumble the carrots, parsnips and potatoes onto the tray. Whisk the oil with the harissa and honey, pour it over, and turn everything until glossy.
3. Roast for 25 minutes, then add the onions and cauliflower, scatter over the cumin seeds and salt, and toss once.
4. Roast for a further 20 minutes, until the edges are scorched in places and a knife slips easily through the thickest piece of carrot.
5. Squeeze the lemon over the hot tray, then scatter with the feta, parsley and almonds.
6. Rest for five minutes so the juices settle, then serve straight from the tray.

Notes

Swap the parsnips for beetroot if you like it earthier, or add a drained tin of chickpeas along with the onions to make it more of a meal. Leftovers keep for two days and are very good stuffed into warm flatbreads.
